Senator Smith inspects storm and flood damages

By ELLIS CUEVAS
State Senator Martin Smith of Hancock and Pearl River Counties visited the Pearl River area late Friday to assess damages caused by the overflow of the Pearl River prior to the opening of a special session of the Legislature Tuesday.

Senator Smith said, "I wanted a first hand view of the damages so I can report them to the Special Legislative session called by Governor Cliff Finch.

I have three committee meetings Monday evening prior to the special session."

The Senator met with Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin at the Pearl River Community Center where Boudin briefed the senator on events of the week and problems caused by the high waters in the Pearl River areas.

"I never realized the western part of Hancock County was so severely affected by the high water," Senator Smith commented as Boudin drove over the passable streets of Pearl River.

Hwy. 604 through Pearl River has been closed in two places due to flooding. The highway, Pearl River's main street, runs between US-90 and

Cadet fishermen plan unification meeting

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Thursday is expected to select either Gulf Fishermen, Inc. or that organization's secretary as Bayou Cadet Marina operator.

However, members of that Hancock County fishermen's organization met Friday at the Bayou Cadet Marina in an attempt to get its secretary, Joyce Garcia, to support a bid to operate the facility submitted by Gulf Fishermen and relinquish her individual bid.

The Port and Harbor Commission's choice of a marina operator is expected to be made from those two bids taken under advisement at a commission meeting last week.

The commission choice will then be presented for approval to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

Gulf Fishermen Inc. bid $150 per month to lease the Marina's facilities and Garcia bid $100 a month for a one-

Farm Bureau open house set Monday

Rural-urban interdependency will be emphasized during 'Farm-City Festival' to be observed with open house from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday at the Hancock County Farm Bureau office in Kiln.

Mississippi Farm Bureau women have included public understanding in their program of work as long as they have had a program, according to Hancock Farm Bureau women's chairman Nell Keenenn.

With so many vital issues requiring legislation or changes in government regulations, it is more necessary than ever that good two-way communication be established between rural and urban individuals," she emphasizes.

To focus attention and increase understanding of rural-urban interdependency, the American Farm Bureau Women's Committee has designated Monday as "Farm-City Festival" day.

"Every state and county Farm Bureau Women's Committee in the nation has been urged to participate, and the Mississippi Board of Directors gave its unanimous approval to this project and encourages every one of the 32 counties to carry out some kind of special activity to build stronger two-way communication between farm and non-farm people," Mr. Koenenn added.

"This is a day to emphasize the importance of our private, competitive enterprise system that brings to Americans the most nutritious food and quality fiber in the world. It is a day to create good will and understanding," she continued.

Many counties are planning open house at Farm Bureau offices.

Invitations are being extended to city officials, civic groups, school groups, and the general public.

The Farm Bureau story will be told through displays, brochures; and by local members as visitors drop by the county office.

"Above all, a spirit of understanding and good will be in evidence," Ms. Koenenn concluded. (See Ed Blake's Ag Affairs column on Page 2B of today's Echo.)

Flood threat declared past

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

A possible southeast wind Friday was the last remaining factor which might have caused the East Pearl River to flood Pearl River, Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin reported.

In flood preparations last week, Civil Defense, assisted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, reported, "Workers would be observing the East Pearl River Friday as a precautionary measure."

Boudin said rising water Wednesday entered two Pearl River homes and covered some Hancock County back roads.

However, Gulfview Elementary School function as a temporary flood shelter in Lakeshore ended Wednesday because no one arrived at the shelter, stated Boudin.

Coast-wide express mail service delayed by Court

The U.S. Postal Service's 'same day' mail delivery was scheduled to be initiated in three areas of the country Monday—the Coast, Chicago, and Columbus, Ohio.

"Naturally I'm disappointed," said Gulfport Postmaster Norman Dilley. "We worked hard and looked forward to being able to serve the people of the Gulf Coast with expedited service, and now we can't," he added.

"This is the first time the Gulf Coast has been included in a pilot postal project and we were really looking forward to the challenge," Dilley lamented.

Plaintiffs in the Chicago Federal Court action contend the Postal Service's "Express Mail Metro Service" could put them out of business.

A hearing on the order is slated May 11 before U.S. District Judge Prentice H. Marshall in Chicago.

Bay St. Louis will be among eight Gulf Coast communities to be served by a new same-day mail delivery service which begins Monday, according to local U.S. Postal Service officials.

The new service, called Express Mail Metro Service, at this time is only to be offered in two other areas in the United States in addition to the Mississippi Gulf Coast, the Postal Service reports. Chicago, Ill., and Columbus, Ohio.

Board acts to seal HNC's leaking roofs

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Hancock County School Board Saturday accepted a $124,300 bid to re-roof buildings at Hancock North Central Attendance Center.

Miri Roofing Co. in Long Beach was the only bidder on the project.

The Board included in its motion to accept the bid a stipulation that the project contract will allow the board to end its agreement with Miri if the board is not satisfied with the contractor's work.

The contractor will re-roof the elementary wing of the attendance center and if the board is not satisfied the balance of the contract (which includes roofs for the junior and senior highs at HNC) will be terminated.

Board member Oris Ladner voted against the measure saying he thinks the stipulation in the contract is unnecessary.

"I'd rather get it all done right away," exclaimed Ladner.

School District Superintendent Terrell Randolph complained students have had to move around in the classrooms to avoid leaks from roofs.

The Board took under advisement air-conditioning bids for Charles B. Murphy and Gulfview cafeterias.

"Is it wise to air-condition these cafeterias when so many classrooms are badly needed to save accreditation," Board member Monvel Cuevas rhetorically asked.

In other action the Board authorized advertising to sell two Frigidaire Deluxe stoves.

Hired Mrs. Pauline T. Earles as a first grade teacher at Hancock North Central Elementary for remainder of the 1978-79 year.

Approved the resignation of Ms. Carol Gilreath at the close of the 1978-79 year.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME—We live in a world of clocks and today is no exception. If you exercised your option of setting your clock ahead one hour last night before you went to sleep, if you got up at 7 a.m. this morning when daylight savings time went into effect and set all your clocks and watches to 8 a.m. at that point, you're ahead of the game. But if you check none of the above, then you're behind. All you have to do is set your clock back one hour because you're late for church.

VIETNAM VETERANS WEEK 1979 PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, we are a peace-seeking Nation and we are at peace, but we must not forget the lessons war has taught us, nor the brave men and women who have sacrificed so much for us in all our wars; and

WHEREAS, the decade now drawing to a close began in the midst of a war that was the longest and most expensive in our history, and most costly in human life and suffering;
Because it was a divisive and painful period for all Americans, we are tempted to want to put the Vietnam war out of our minds; but it is important that we remember honestly, realistically, and with humility;

WHEREAS, it is important, too, that we remember those who answered their Nation's call in that war with the full measure of their valor and loyalty, that we pay full tribute at last to all Americans who served in our Armed Forces in Southeast Asia. Their courage and sacrifices in the tragic conflict were made doubly difficult by the Nation's lack of agreement as to what constituted the highest duty. Instead of glory, they were too often met with our embarrassment, or were ignored when they returned; and

WHEREAS, the honor of those who died there is not tarnished by our uncertainty at the moment of their sacrifice. To them we offer our respect and gratitude. To the loved ones they left behind, we offer our concern and understanding and our help to build new lives. To those who still bear the wounds, both physical and psychic, from all our wars, we acknowledge our continuing responsibility;
and

WHEREAS, to them, and to all who served or suffered in that war, we give our solemn pledge to pursue all honorable means to establish a just and lasting peace in the world, that no future generation need suffer in this way again.

NOW, THEREFORE, WE, THE BOARD OF SUPER-VISORS of Hancock County, Mississippi, call upon all Americans to observe May 28 through June 3, 1979, the week of our traditional Memorial Day, as Vietnam Veterans Week. On this occasion, let us as a Nation express our sincere thanks for the service of all Vietnam era veterans.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we urge our fellow citizens and our fellow veterans, and their groups and organizations to honor the patriotism of these veterans, and to recognize their civilian contributions to their communities in America today.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I, Alton A. Kellar, President of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi have hereunto set my hand this sixteenth day of March, 1979.

Beaches need more sand

The damages to Beach Boulevard this past weekend put more emphasis on the fact that our beaches need more sand.

The areas with the most damage were the areas where the sand originally pumped in by the Corps of Engineers has finally all washed away.

We realize the sand does cause a lot of problems to the residents of the Beach, but, we feel the assets far exceed the liabilities.

Those of us who can remember the severe damages to Beach Boulevard from the 1947 Hurricane from the Jourdan River to Bayou Cadet, saw what happened when there was no sand beach at all.

It took years, and we mean many years, to repair the damages caused by the 1947 storm to the Beach Boulevard.

In 1965, Betsy sent the extremities of her power and very small amounts of damage was done to the Beach Boulevard.

In 1969 Hurricane Camille roared in, her eye raking over the Hancock County area and there was some damage to Beach Boulevard, but not any where near the proportions of the 1947 storm.

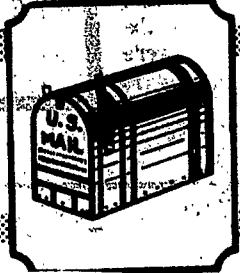

We must also remember that Hurricane Camille was reportedly the worst storm ever to enter the United States mainland, and the 1947 hurricane was a medium size storm.

The sand beach offers protection to the road, it somehow breaks up the wave action, to be honest we do not know exactly what it all does, but we have sure been able to recognize the amount of damages caused by a storm in areas where there is no sand beach compared to where there is a sand beach.

We would like to recommend that our officials try to get the Corps of Engineers to replace our sand beaches.

To The Editor:

Visitors deserve pier warnings

Editor

Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

I cannot help but wonder if there is now a sign warning of the shallow water and danger of diving off the beach pier in Bay St. Louis.

I grew up in Bay St. Louis and I seem to remember more than one tragic accident.

I asked someone now living there and they said that the pier is no longer the city's responsibility.

Be that as it may, whether it be the city or county, I believe that the people of Bay St. Louis should see that something is done.

Possibly a civic organization would take this on as a project. To keep a sign there at least during the summer months.

Even if vandals deface it or tear it down, they can at least say they tried. Maybe they can save one teenage boy or girl from a life time of being totally paralyzed.

Think about it. The summer visitors are on their way.

year lease along with a proposal of a capital investment of $22,000 at the facility.

The Commission took the two bids under advisement Thursday at its meeting because Commission member Fred Curet and President Joe D. McCulloch were absent, said Commission Director Wilson Wehre.

"We will try to choose the best bid," Wehre stated Friday.

"Bidding procedure for marina operation requires an estimate of the capital required to do the job," explained Wehre.

"Gulf Fishermen Inc. failed to submit any estimate of capital in their bid Thursday night," he noted.

Gulf Fishermen Inc. plans to sub-let the marina under a non-profit corporate structure.

"The main thing I want to accomplish now at this point in time," said Mrs. Garcia at the Friday meeting, "is to convert this marina into a real nice restaurant."

"I don't have a fight with any of you (association members)," she continued. "I'm one of you—I feel I could make my profit on the sale of cooked seafood and pass on the savings to the fishermen by offering them a better price for their catch."

Tommy Holzhauser, Gulf Fishermen Inc. president, replied, "We want control of the docks—we don't want to pay any individual for tying up."

Garcia retorted, "Where in the U.S. can anyone tie up free of charge?"

"The fishermen's association has control of the docks and we want to keep it that way," a fisherman insisted. "We don't want anyone telling us you can do this or you can't do that."

Mrs. Garcia and Holzhauser each expressed confusion about why and when the other one bid.

"I was surprised when several fishermen representing Gulf Fishermen Inc. came into the Commission meeting Thursday and bid for operator," Mrs. Garcia said.

Holzhauser complained, "We didn't know you were going to bid for operator until approximately an hour and a half before the meeting."

Mrs. Garcia stated several times during her conversation with Holzhauser that she did not think the organization legally existed because, the group had not called a meeting in a couple of years.

She complained the group had not followed its own bylaws and called herself "a secretary of a so-called organization."

"Maybe the organization has not been run as it should have been run," Holzhauser said, "but that's not the issue. The issue is there are not enough docking facilities for the fleet here."

"Bayou Cadet has the only public docking facility in Hancock County and the fishermen want to manage their catch, sales, and maintenance of the marina—we don't want an individual to do it," the association spokesman continued.

Mrs. Garcia said she could see the view point of the fishermen, but asked them to give her a chance at managing the marina.

"I'm one of you," Mrs. Garcia reiterated.

"I'll never send the local fisherman away from docking space if they have no where else to go," she added.

Mrs. Garcia also made it clear she had nothing against Holzhauser. "You (Holzhauser) have helped me many times by assisting me when I had problems with my boat. We have eaten together and had good times together."

Fishermen, after hearing of Mrs. Garcia's plans to install a conveyor at the marina, stated a conveyor would prevent three boats from docking at the facility.

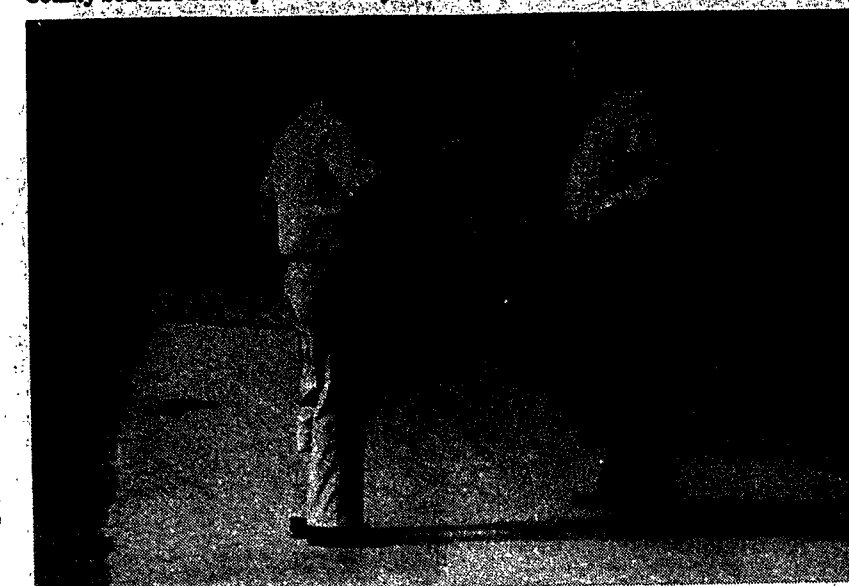

"Let's solve the problem together and that way the Commission will not have to make a choice," said Holzhauser. "You can take the restaurant under our bid—all we want is control of the docking area."

Mrs. Garcia replied, "That sounds good, I'll sleep on it and let you know later. After all, I spent three weeks deciding to bid for operator so I'm not going to just jump into this without taking some time."

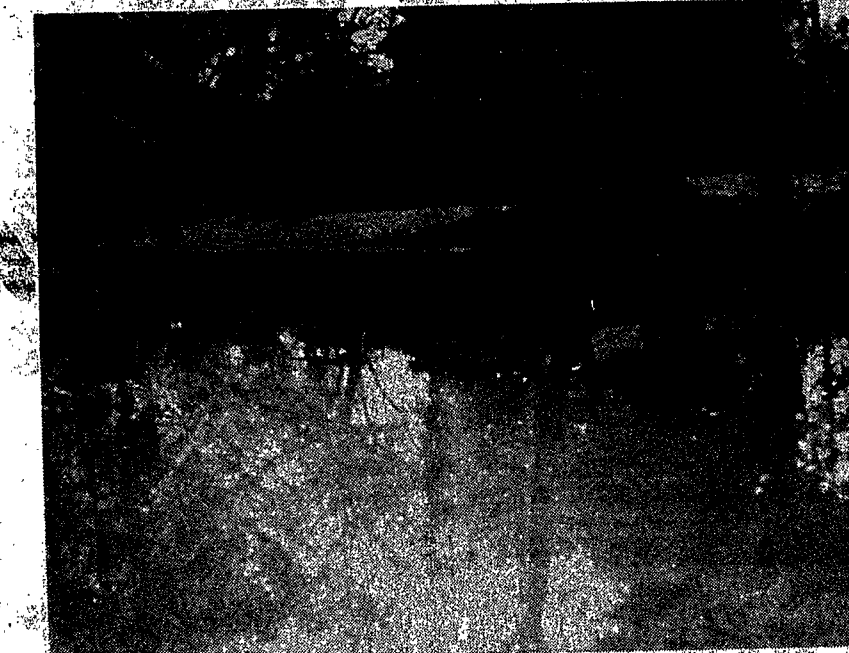

The fishermen's association president scheduled a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday for all members and potential members at the Hancock County Courthouse in the Board of Supervisors meeting room to discuss the status of their organization.

BOAT HOIST UNDER WATER-Roy Baxter's Marina in Pearlington on the Pearl River shows the wide-spread flooding in the area. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers installed a sea level gauge at the Marina last week and it read 5.5 feet above sea level when this photo was taken late Friday. Baxter reported the water fell to 5.2 feet by Saturday morning and was holding steady with a rising tide. All of the property of the Marina was not covered by the water Friday as Baxter's home and a dry storage shed were high and dry. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas).

Hwy. 807.

At Roy Baxter's Marina, Senator Smith checked the sea level gauge installed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers last week.

The gauge registered 5.5 feet at the time, which Baxter said was the highest reading recorded thus far.

Baxter told Senator Smith residents have received extraordinary cooperation from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, area municipalities, Civil Defense, and volunteers in preparation for the flood.

Boudin added, "I saw eight-year-old boys holding sandbags for other to fill."

"In the Pearlington area there were a lot of unknowns for the Corps of Engineers, and I would very much like to commend them on their forecasts and assistance. It is hard to work on something when you have never had it before, to really know what you are dealing with," Baxter commented when talking to Senator Smith about the unprecedented flood levels on the Pearl River system this Spring.

Senator Smith visited Belle Isle Subdivision in Pearlington and where several homes were under water.

In Oak Harbor Subdivision, the Senator viewed the preparations made by residents with sand bags ready for use if necessary.

One resident told Senator Smith, "On our side of Highway 80 there was more water last Sunday than on Friday evening."

The resident was referring to the sudden storm which caused extensive evacuations in the County because of high waters forced in by high winds, high tides and heavy rains Sunday and Monday.

Senator Smith joined Supervisors Bert Courge and Sam Pernicklaro along Hancock County's beach road to assess damages from that storm in their Districts.

"Really this road should be closed to traffic, but that is hard to do when it is the entrance to a State Park," commented Courge.

Courge said a rough estimate of $400,000 in damage to Beach Boulevard in his district alone was made Monday by Broadway and Seal, County engineers.

He said probably another $100,000 in the four other districts was estimated.

Courge said the problem now faced by supervisors is that they alone do not have enough money to do the entire job without assistance.

"My big concern is the projected opening of the new Wave Pool at Buccaneer State Park in a few months," he elaborated.

"How are the people going to be able to reach it with the road damaged along the beach in both directions?" Courge allowed.

Senator Smith made several contacts to gather technical information on the weather conditions last Sunday to take to Jackson.

In his discussions with the two supervisors, Senator Smith told them he would do everything in his power to obtain aid for both the Pearlington area and also Beach Boulevard.

Saturday morning Roy Baxter reported the tide gauge had dropped three-tenths of a foot.

Baxter received a report from Charles Russ, III early Saturday morning saying the water north of I-10 had dropped five inches over Friday night. Russ is a Pearlington native.

"It looks like I-10 held the water back, letting it through gradually, which caused the delay in the crest reaching us in Pearlington. The water would have probably been higher without the Interstate Highway," Baxter added.

"I would like to put emphasis on the fact about the help we received in Pearlington from so many people," Baxter reported Saturday.

"The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Civil Defense, Mississippi National Guard, Board of Supervisors, Hancock County Sheriff's office, West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department, the Incorporated areas, South Central Bell, Coast Electric Power Association and all volunteers," Baxter said Saturday the people of Pearlington will always be grateful to them.

The telephone company installed an emergency communications line in the Pearlington Community Center for the Corps of Engineers and Civil Defense.

"Coast Electric turned the power off to some homes in the flooded areas for the protection of lives. I know some have criticized the company, but, I feel they were doing the only thing they could, you can replace homes and furniture, not a life," Baxter allowed.

Robert Boudin, Civil Defense director, said a total of 40,000 sand bags were delivered to the Community Center in Pearlington.

"It wasn't long before 20,000 of them were in use, the people didn't wait like they did in other areas threatened by this flood. I have never seen so much cooperation between so many people before in Hancock County," the CD director said.

The County and City of Bay St. Louis sent trucks and men power to haul the sand to several Pearlington areas. Boudin added the men even helped the residents bag the sand.

Saturday afternoon Baxter reported the tide gauge still registered 5.2, which meant with a rising tide, the water was still falling.

are the other metropolitan areas to be covered under the new program, according to Norman L. Dilley, Gulfport postmaster.

He noted the service areas were approved at the last regular monthly meeting of the Postal Service's Board of Governors. Other cities will be added later in the year, according to Dilley.

"The service is designed to provide highly reliable same day and early next morning delivery of time sensitive materials in the Mississippi Gulf Coast area," he said.

The local service area includes Gulfport, Biloxi, Pascagoula, Long Beach, Bay St. Louis, Gautier, Ocean Springs and Pass Christian.

"Our new service allows customers to bring their letters or packages to one of several designated post offices in the service area before 10 a.m. for delivery before 5 p.m.," Dilley said. Items deposited by noon at specified centrally located offices also will receive delivery by 5 p.m.

Express Mail Metro Service also gives users the option of depositing items at designated post offices by 5 p.m. for delivery by 10 a.m. the next day. "We also offer a pick-up service at the customer's place of business on a pre-arranged, scheduled basis," Dilley said.

"In addition to the new service's speed and reliability," Dilley said, "We offer a full refund on postage if we fail to deliver on time." The service also offers insurance for packages containing merchandise valued up to $500 and document reconstruction coverage up to $50,000 at no additional charge.

Rates for new service are: $6 for items up to one pound; $12 for items weighing over one and up to eight pounds; and $15 for pieces over eight up to 70 pounds in weight.

A charge of $5.25 per trip will be made for pick-up service.

"Express Mail Metro Service will meet needs of area business mailers and others who require same-day delivery of letters, business documents and merchandise," Dilley said.

"The Postal Service selected the Mississippi Gulf Coast area to gain experience in smaller metropolitan communities and because of our area's importance in the Gulf Coast trading area," Dilley said.

Express Mail Metro Service acceptance locations are: Pascagoula, Main Office, Eastlawn Station, Moss Point Branch and Krotz Branch, Gautier, Ocean Springs, Biloxi, Main Office, North Bay Branch, and West Biloxi Station; Gulfport, Downtown Station, General Mail Facility, Hanksboro Station and Mississippi City Station; Long Beach; Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis.

Flood threat.....

Pearlington are camps on pilings and are safe from even the biggest flood to ever hit the southern end of the Pearl River basin.

The Pearl River crested at 19.3 feet Thursday and began receding later that day, reported the National Weather Service in Slidell, La.

In other areas of Mississippi, flooding is believed to have considerably damaged seafood and farm crops.

Dr. Richard Leard, director of the Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission, states, "I think throughout the Gulf Coast area consumers can look for higher seafood prices and probably reduced supplies."

Leard listed flooding of the Pearl river and opening of the Bonnet Carré spillway in Louisiana as the cause for damage to sea food crops.

"Similar conditions occurred in 1973 when the spillway was opened," recalled Leard, "and it really hurt our oyster reefs in the western quarter of the state."

Other reports show cotton and soybean farmers in the Mississippi Delta have been delayed by flooding waters from preparing farmland.

As the deadline for planting draws near, the lower Delta has thousands of acres of farmland under water from flooding rivers.

Bill Bridges of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Vicksburg estimated about 274,000 acres of farmland in Vicksburg has been covered by backwater.

"When you're a farmer and your land is underwater an inch is as good as a foot," Bridges said.

George Mullendore, a cotton specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service, said that for persons in the lower Delta "no cotton or just a fraction of the percentage we would like to have will be produced."

Wayne Jordan, the service's soybean specialist, said because of the longer planting period, many cotton farmers in the flooded area may turn to soybeans.

Derbies, 'rats' and bustles highlighted 1900 fashions

By S. GRADY THOMPEN
Hancock Historian

As I have grown older, I have come to more and more realize the inevitability of change.

There'll never be another day like today, another year like last year or another ten years like the last ten.

Some comic said, "Everything changes but two things you must change yourself - the baby and the flat tire."

In everything there is constant change. You hear people say they'll do so and so when things become normal again, but you can be sure that what is normal today is not what normal was yesterday.

It is most interesting to note the great changes in the ways people dress now compared to 70 years ago. When I was a boy growing up in a country community in Jasper County, Mississippi around 1900, both men and women dressed very differently from now.

Every doctor I knew and many of the preachers in our rural area wore derby hats, and frock tail coats; traveling salesmen wore derbies and young fellow who wanted to dress in the latest fashion wore derbies.

Derbies predominated as the head covering for candidates who spoke at summer picnics in the 1890s and early 1900s.

My father was elected to the legislature in 1896. He came home from Jackson wearing a derby and a frock tail coat.

Dr. Frank Duke, whose farm joined my father's wore a derby hat and a frock tail coat. He was a rather tall man with brown beard, brown mustache and a brown derby.

He made an imposing appearance.

When I was a very small boy my father had pneumonia and Dr. Duke came several times to our house. I remember my mother telling often of how the good doctor stayed with my father for several hours at the time the crisis came in his fight with the disease.

I also remember that the folks would often tell of how

Dr. Duke would always ask for a kettle of hot water when he made a call. My mother said that when they sent for Dr. Duke my father would say, "Put on a kettle of water and have it hot by the time he gets here."

Dr. J. O. Denson, who practiced medicine in our area for many years, wore a black derby and a heavy dark mustache. After Dr. Duke got a government job at Pascagoula and moved there, Dr. Will Terry moved into our community. He also wore a derby and had an iron gray mustache.

The old time country doctors had no Cadillac or other kind of cars to ride in so they made calls in all kinds of weather on horseback, in a buggy or a two wheel cart.

All the men in our community in my early days wore mustaches. As they grew older they grew beards.

As I remember it, the young unmarried men went clean shaven. When they married, they grew mustaches.

As they got older and began to have grandchildren they grew beards and most of them had tobacco stains on their beards.

Both my grandfathers and the only great grandfather I ever knew had heavy beards.

One important reason for men growing beards was that shaving was a big task back then. Razors had to be honed and then stropped to keep them in good cutting orders.

When I first began to shave I used an old time razor. To shave I had to wheat water on the kitchen stove, or get hot water from the reservoir and I had to strop the razor well after every shaving to keep a good edge on it.

I used an old time shaving brush to spread the lather on my face. As it was so much trouble to shave, no one shaved every day but maybe two or three times a week.

It was difficult to shave without cutting one's self. One was lucky not to nip himself at least once or twice in shaving. At church on Sunday I well remember seeing men there with slight razor cuts on their faces.

I bought my first safety razor with five blades for 25 cents when I left for A&M College in the fall of 1900.

Most men I knew when I was growing up chewed tobacco and most women dipped snuff, especially the older men and women.

Tobacco and snuff were among the biggest selling items in the country stores when I was growing up.

All dress shirts for men in my youth were made without collars. Collars were held onto the shirts with collar buttons, one in the back and one in front. Practically every man wore this type of shirt and collar.

From about 1903 and for several years thereafter the collars in style were very high, so high that a man had to get up on a stump to spit over one, so it was said.

A little earlier but well within my memory, men wore shirts with ruffles in front and buttoned up in the back rather than in the front as now.

Along about 1900 collars made of celluloid became popular as they could be easily washed clean and wiped dry and ready to wear again within a few seconds.

While trousers for men were sold in the stores, many men wore trousers made at home.

Neither the trousers made at home or the store-bought ones were form fitted as they are now. All men wore suspenders, or as we used to call them, galluses. No man would have ventured out wearing only a belt as all do now.

As I remember it, all men parted their hair on the side with a very few exceptions - none wore the styles of today.

A few parted their hair in the middle. If a man was brash enough to part his hair in the middle, he was thought to be a sissy.

I remember hearing an old man who had a country store say he would not hire a man who drank whiskey, owned a bird dog, or parted his hair in the middle.

He said that the man who drank would be off from work often on account of his drinking, that the one with the bird dog would be always getting off to hunt, and that he had no confidence in a man who parted his hair in the middle.

Shoes men wore were not too much different from now except that most shoes were the high top type, low quarters were not very popular.

When I was about grown, or a little before, button shoes came into style.

A small tool made for the purpose was used to fasten the button top shoes.

I wore them myself as did most of the young people at this time.

The first patent leather shoes I ever saw were worn by a great uncle who lived in Mobile and who visited my grandfather about 1900.

There were no barber shops in our area when I grew up. I think I must have been 12 or 14 years old before I ever heard of a barbershop and about 15 before I ever got a haircut in one.

Some member of the family usually cut hair - in our family it was mother.

Often there was a man living in the neighborhood who specialized in cutting hair. He would set up a shop on his front porch, usually on Saturday, and barber for anyone who came along, but most of the old people back then thought it was foolish to pay good money for a haircut when it could be cut at home for nothing.

Women's clothes back 70 years ago were startlingly different from what is seen now.

If a woman would walk down the street now dressed in the style of 1900 she would be a great curiosity.

She would have on a broad brimmed hat, a dress with long sleeves, high collar and a skirt down to within a couple of inches of the ground, with not more than her ankles showing beneath the skirt.

She would have a parasol, which would be open if there was even slightest bit of sunshine. If a woman had walked down the street in 1900 dressed as most women dress now, she would have been a sensation, and if she had worn a miniskirt she would surely have been arrested and charged with indecent exposure.

I heard an old man say not long ago that a man can see exactly what he is getting before he marries with the way women dress now, but that when he was young you had to marry her first to find out what he was getting.

All women had long hair back when I grew up. The older women would tie their hair up in knots on the rear of their heads.

Occasionally some daring young lady would bob her hair.

Bobbing the hair was not considered proper and was strongly disapproved of by the older women who quoted the Bible for proof.

The acme of criticism was to say, "Why she bobs her hair!"

Young women used a contraption called a "rat" which was concealed in and wrapped up by the hair just over the forehead to create the illusion of a heavy head of hair. I suppose this "thing" was called a "rat" because it was about the size of a rat and was shaped about like one.

Most of the young women in my early days wore bustles, especially those who were slender and did not weigh much. A bustle was a pad worn under the skirt to make the hips look fuller and larger.

The young women who visited our home used these bustles and rats. The bustles were used to create the delusion of a strong build, or you might say better build; as the most stylish young ladies back then were heavier and more plump than seems to be the ones considered most stylish today.

The pictures in the old advertising show almost always women who are rather plump instead of string-beanish as most do today.

Almost all young women and some old women wore corsets in the early 1900's - bras had not been invented back then. How a woman could wear a corset especially on a hot summer day, I'll never understand, but I guess it just goes to show to what extremes many women will go to be considered stylish.

As my father used to say, "If walking on their hands was decreed as stylish by the fashion experts in Paris and New York, you'd see women all over the country doing their best to use their hands for walking rather than their feet."

When you see the way women dress today you'll have to pretty well agree that what he said is true.

When I grew up, the little girls dressed about as do now. As they got older their dresses began to be lowered until finally at about 16 or 17 or earlier they wore dresses down almost to the ground like the older women wore.

Small boys wore short knee pants with button holes around the waist. The shirts extended only to the waist and had buttons around them to match the button holes in the pants.

Boys began wearing long pants about the time their voices changed at about 13 or 14 years of age. I wore my first long pants about 13½ years old.

The styles of dress today are certainly much more comfortable and sensible than 75 years ago, but it is my opinion that most of both women and men are still slaves of the fashion dictators as they were in the long ago.

Cats clout Rocks

St. Stanislaus hurler Andrew Haas' perfect 6-0 season was shattered Thursday as the Stone County Tomcats clobbered the Rock-A-Chows 7-1.

Stone County's Ricky Stone knocked a two-run homer in the seventh to cap the Tomcat victory.

Center Fielder Tom Dorsett sparked the Stone County offense with a double, RBI, and stolen base. Haas was charged with the loss, going the distance and accumulating six strikeouts and five walks.

The Rocks, now 2-7 for the season, were slated to close out their season Saturday in a match against Notre Dame in Biloxi.

Junior left-hander Scott Cox was slated to start for the Rocks at the 1 p.m. contest.

Celery Orlando Is Novel Salad

Instead of the ubiquitous mixed salad, why not try a new and unusual salad combination? Crisp, jewel-green Florida celery, now available in supermarkets, is the star of this novel salad, providing the eye appeal and fresh texture which makes salads so tempting.

Celery Orlando's delicately curried dressing blends wonderfully with the crunch of the celery, apples and salted peanuts. It's an unusually refreshing combination and easily invited to any lunch or supper.

CELERY ORLANDO:
1 cup salad oil
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon curry powder
Pinch ground black pepper
1 stalk (bunch) Florida celery
2 cups diced, unpeeled apples
4 cup salted peanuts

To prepare dressing combine in a small bowl or jar oil, lemon juice, salt, curry powder and black pepper. Set aside for 1 hour for flavors to develop. Trim tops from celery (use in soups, stews, etc.). Separate celery into ribs, cut into thin slices (makes about 4 cups). Place in a large bowl, along with apples and peanuts. Toss with reserved dressing. Serve on a platter lined with lettuce. (Adapted from: 8 cups)

Union prexy running for superintendent

By RICH ADAMS

Mississippi Federation of Teachers State President Ramond D. Magallanes, who strongly criticized operation of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board, has announced his candidacy for Harrison County School superintendent.

Magallanes called the operation of the city school board a "dictatorship" on Sept. 11 after Bay School
Superintendent J.D. Mc-Cullough intervened in a discussion concerning a discipline policy between Teacher Nell Woodall and Board President Virginia Gex.
McCullough interrupted the conversation and refused to allow Ms. Woodall to comment on the matter.

Magallanes is a former mathematics and science teacher at d'Iberville High School and has been a strong advocate of teacher and student rights.
"A quality teacher is a primary key to a quality education program,"
Magallanes said.

MISSISSIPPI MARKET NEWS

CHICKEN AND EGGS MARCH 1979

Mississippi's 6,985,000 layers produced 147 million eggs in March 1979, according to the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is 4 million (3 percent) below the 151 million eggs produced in March 1978.

Broiler-type chicks hatched in Mississippi during February totaled 24,734,000 (8 percent) above the March 1978 hatch. The hatch of egg-type chicks was 1,253,000 (20 percent) above the 1,044,000 egg-type chicks hatched in March 1978.

BROILER-TYPE

Hatcheries in the State set 6,738,000 eggs for broiler chicks during the week ending April 21, 1979, two percent below the previous week but seven percent above the 6,317,000 set the corresponding week a year ago.

There were 6,014,000 broiler chicks placed on Mississippi farms during the week ending April 21, 1979, slightly above the previous week and one percent above the 5,968,000 placed the corresponding week a year ago.

EGG-TYPE

Hatcheries in the State set 303,000 eggs for egg-type chicks during the week ending April 21, 1979, slightly below the previous week and 32 percent below the 448,000 set during the comparable week a year ago.

Mississippi wildlife film makes premiere showing

Mississippians will soon get a close look at some of its own wild lands when the 30-minute documentary "Sound or Silence: Wild Heritage Mississippi" is aired over the Mississippi Educational Television network, Monday evening, April 30 at 7:00.

A joint production of the state's Wildlife Heritage Committee and Mississippi ETV, the half-hour film tells about efforts to preserve some of the last remnants of Mississippi's natural and wildlife lands.

In production for well over a year, the film graphically portrays the sullen beauty of wild and uninhabited lands in the state. The film relates how and why we should preserve lands for outdoor recreation. "There are sights, sounds, and scenes in the film that many Mississippians never knew existed," Wildlife Heritage Administrator Bill Quisenberry said.

"Another unique feature of the film is that the entire production was written, produced, and filmed by Mississippians, and is an indication of what our state is capable of doing." The film will be rebroadcast on Sunday evening, May 6 at 6:30.

Ag Affairs

by Ed Blake

This week across the land farm and city people are updating their economic and cultural inter-relationships as Farm-City Festivals are held in thousands of counties across America.

And the message that modern agriculture would like to flash to their town friends and often relatives is that agriculture remains the keystone of their nation's economy. Yet it remains susceptible to a wide range of modern day problems and depends on non-farm people to sustain it on a day-by-day basis.

Today modern agriculture feeds the world, for the most part a bountiful food supply through a system of competitive marketing. Americans can claim the greatest share of agriculture's efficiency as food is provided for the smallest share of adal wages of any people at any time in history. For the average U.S. family one day's labor pays for one week's supply of food.

While starvation and poor diets continue in many of the less developed, overpopulated and disadvantaged spots of the world, the general situation over the world is that food is provided daily in ample quantities.

And here in the U.S. food is available without permits or long lines. Add to that the tantalizing quality of American food, generally free of rotting or hazardous portions as found in parts of the world, and it is a pretty good case for the mutual admiration being shown this week by Americans for their dinner table abundance.

Agriculture's claim to a keystone position in the economy is appropriate. A keystone in building is the stone on the top or in the middle of an arch or vaulted structure which, being wider at the top than at the bottom, serves as a wedge to bind the structure together.

The known value of a keystone has been with us since the stone age, and as time went on artisans, recognizing its indispensable value, often chiseled the keystone ornamentally, or allowed it to protrude to call attention to it.

Philosophically, the keystone principle is that which holds several parts together as a supporting fact or principle. Pennsylvania early adopted the name "Keystone State" because of its central location on the chain of original states as well as site of the Declaration of Independence and the drafting of the Constitution.

American industry and agriculture go together like cheese and the hoop, or crackers and the barrel.

Each depends on the other and would be extremely hard put to function without this daily inter-dependence.

This year U.S. farmers will sell and estimate $120 billion of farm products. And while doing so, as employers and consumers, they will spend about $104 billion to produce the crop and livestock.

Last year it took between eight and ten million people to store, transport, process and merchandise farm output - and that's roughly equal to the total able population of five states the size of Mississippi. The nation's dairymen alone last year spent $1.8 billion in wages for 170,000 persons.

In other proliferations of the keystone principle generated by agriculture, the bakery industry had a $2.6 billion payroll going to 237,000 workers, while the food canning, freezing and curing industries paid out $1.9 billion to 223,000 wage earners.

After the '78 cotton crop left farms in the South and West it generated a $1 billion payroll to 152,000 thousand employees of cotton mills and finishing plants.

Add to this the transportation, handling, and merchandising of cotton and other farm generated fabrics in the clothing and home furnishings field and the ag keystone protrudes even more.

Mississippians can be justifiably grateful for this fact when they realize their chief industry is a renewable one with even brighter prospects for future development - rather than facing a shutdown as un-renewable resources become depleted.
